Homeowners: 'Custom home is fantastic'

Ray and Frankie Farmers wanted a new home that was large and had rooms where the family could have private time. They also wanted the home to have unique features and quality reflected throughout. Did they get it?

"Robert Fredrick designed the perfect home for us and incorporated every feature and feeling we wanted," Frankie said.

"Mike Cohen took us on a tour of his own home to point out quality features he could use in building our home. We felt very comfortable with Mike and confident that he would provide what we expected from a quality builder. He did just that."

That meeting with Fredrick and Cohen (the owner of MC Construction Consultant Inc.) began an excellent partnership of minds.

"Early on, a high level of synergy was apparent between Mike and Robert. A number of creative and innovative concepts were developed from joint meetings with them. We have highly recommended both Mike and Robert of MC Construction to our friends."

The three-bedroom home complements the couple's lifestyle. "The porch, which wraps around three sides of house, allows us to be outside all year long — protected from rain, wind, sun," Frankie said. "It wraps into the covered screened porch that we use to extend our living space. Screen doors on both sides of the porch also allow access to the patios that span the great room, dining room and master suite. The porch ceiling is cedar planking — it's unique and beautiful!"

The excellence of design continues with exterior walkways.

"The three-car garage (actually two cars and a tractor) with Ray's workshop and full attic storage is connected to the house by a covered walkway that is actually an extension of the porch," Frankie explained. "This leads to the mud room where we kick off our muddy boots, hang up coats, and toss wet clothes right into the under-counter washer and dryer."

The great room and kitchen area is another of the couple's favorite places.

"The gas fireplace in the great room features a custom crafted mantel and trim that reflects the craftsman/mission style seen throughout the house," Frankie said.

"And, the kitchen was designed so that both Ray and I can cook and prepare food together. Two under-counter sinks and two ovens, with wrap around counter tops, ensure plenty of room for food preparation. The cherry cabinets and deep green granite counter tops are accented by touches of black and stainless steel."

At day's end, the couple can retire to their comfortable master bedroom and its beautiful bathroom.

"The master bath includes a huge walk-in shower, a separate toilet room, and a garden window where the cares of the day are whirled and bubbled away in an oversized bathtub with an amazing view of the gardens outside. The French doors off the master bedroom open to a private terrace, which provides a wonderful pastoral view and ensures abundant light — even on rainy days."
